Meet Hailey

In 2013, Hailey suffered a brain hemorrhage after a series of migraines. She was flown by Life Lion to Penn State Children's Hospital to undergo surgery and spent weeks learning to walk and talk again. The hemorrhage was found to be caused by a congenital arteriovenous malformation.

Hailey's mom, Penny, said the family was hugely impacted by Child Life, a program funded by Children's Miracle Network. Jenna, Hailey's twin sister, worried that she would experience the same thing since it was congenital. Child Life explained Hailey's situation in terms she could understand. Child Life also helped Hailey communicate using white boards when she was unable to speak.

Today, Hailey is doing well! She still has some challenges but is pursuing her life's passion - art!
